Recipe tasting party July 6 helps school kids

Local bankers are hosting a recipe tasting party on July 6 from 11 a.m. to 2 p.m. where community members can taste recipes from a local cookbook for only $5 a plate, purchase a cookbook for $7 or sample recipes and purchase the cookbook for $10.

All the fun is focused on filling 200 backpacks for Newcastle school children before classes begin in August.

Sponsoring this Fill the Bus event is First National Bank & Trust Co., which created the event five years ago and has turned it into a local campaign for school supplies for local kids. Lots of creative fundraisers sponsored by lots of Newcastle businesses have helped each year.

To help reach the program's $5,000 goal this summer, FNBT bankers are selling a special Fill the Bus cookbook containing more than 40 recipes which range from Butterfinger cheesecake pie to turkey taco soup.

"This fun event is a great way to help schools and taste some great recipes," said FNBT Bank Manager Miranda Taliaferro. "The need is real. We're asking for help to raise funds due to the rising costs of supplies for students. Education is extremely important and we need to make sure all of our children have a good start when school starts in August."

First National Bank Assistant Manager Brittany Ramanjulu digs into a homemade piece of Butterfinger cheesecake which will be one of the many items on the menu during the Fill the Bus recipe tasting party at FNBT-Newcastle on July 6.
