Bankers all scream for Ice Cream

Ice cream fans were beating the heat by playing games and eating ice cream at the 26th Annual Tuttle Ice Cream Festival on June 17.

First National Bank's millennial team lead by Chair Matt Kennell and Co-Chair Katey Chambers made appearances throughout the day at the festival by handing out oneup hand fans and sunscreen sticks.

"I enjoy visiting with the kids. They seem to love the sunscreen stick colors we give them; when we hand the sunscreen to them, we tell the kids they are magic super hero colors, this way the kids feel like they have superpowers wearing the colors and it protects their faces from the sun," FNBT-Blanchard Loan Assistant Kailey Smith said.

FNBT plans to have an interactive water game at a booth for next year's Ice Cream Festival.

"I feel that all of us being out in our community is not only a great sales opportunity but a time where we can show the town we support them and the events they are holding." FNBT-Tuttle Deposit Banker Ashley Swidler said.

Ethan Armstrong is excited to put his super powers to work by lathering up in First National Bank's multiple colored sunscreen at the Tuttle Ice Cream Festival on June 17.
