Alex freshmen learn about the FDIC

Alex High School Freshmen learn about the history of the FDIC and the national debt. First National Bank CFO Kyle Abrahams reached out to the Alex Freshman to help them establish a better understanding of how the FDIC operates. "It is important for the next generation to be aware of how our government and fiscal system operates to better equip them as contributing members of the business world and informed citizens," Abrahams said. All of these students will have interactions with banks throughout their lifetimes, so presentations like Abrahams will help the students to know what can be expected in their futures.
