Bankers walk for a cause

The First National Bank Relay for Life team raised more than $2,200 during this year's annual Relay for Life community fundraising day on June 2.

The FNBT team spent the day celebrating cancer survivors and remembered those who fought by walking on the relay track at the Chickasha High School football track.

The "Circus" themed event kicked off by honoring the communities' survivors as they led the team in the first lap around the track. Mary Glasgow, credit administration associate from FNBT, was one of the survivors who walked in the Relay.

"People do care, when you go to a relay event you see the community come together to help people that they don't even know," Glasgow said. "They have compassion and it shows the survivors that all is not lost. It makes our hearts soar!"

All other Relay members cheered the survivors on as they celebrated the first lap. Others joined in on multiple laps until the end of the evening.

Nine Chickasha sponsored Relay teams, multiple vendor booths and large inflatables were available for supporters to visit and purchase products in support of the Relay for Life event.

The entire Chickasha Relay raised almost $35,000 for Cancer Awareness and Research.

FNBT's relay team members are Captain Chandra Perry, John Gorton, Matt Pitts Shaeli Summers, Hydie Wilkins, DeDee Resendez, Jo Perryman, Katey Chambers, Kendra Meador, Rebecca Jones, Sharon

Bowman, Kandice Martin, Amanda Robnett and Morgan Wagner.

"Every person has been touched by cancer in some way; someone you know has been a caregiver, has cancer, has survived cancer, or was taken by cancer," FNBT Relay Captain Chandra Perry said. "Relay is a way for us to show our support."
