Cement third grade uses math skills to understand money

Cement Elementary School's third graders learn about computing cost and creating change from First National Bank Loan Officer Tim Koehler, Manager Sharon Bowman and Assistant Manager Mary Chrismon's recent program.

The students were told a story named "A Tale of Two Brothers", which explains saving towards goals rather than spending money frivolously.

Koehler also led the class through a game where the students were faced with situations and had to figure the amount of change they would receive when purchasing items of varying prices.

"We want them to think about their money and how it all adds up by using the math skills they already have," Bowman said. "Our goal is to continue to support the school system in Cement, both financially and educationally."

First National Bank Loan Officer Tim Koehler explains the importance of saving money to Cement third graders along with using play money to calculate cost and learn how to create change when making purchases on Feb. 26.
